Washinton and St. Louis clubs hooked up in one of the most exciting struggles of the season at American League Park yesterday afternoon, the locals finally getting the de-

The game was a typical Falkenberg contest. The tall boy apparently was not in his best form, using the cross-fire ball very seldom; gave seven passes to first and hit righted style. The more one sees of this tall boy convinces the student of the game that he is invincible when in form and going at his best. Many times he has gotten in difficulty and runs appear sure for the osing team, when all at once Falkenerg changes his style, puts on puzzling d and the final outs are registered without a run being made.

To substantiate this belief Falkenberg gave an apt illustration yesterday in the eleventh inning. Powell had made a hit with one out and was forced to second by base on balls to Niles. Jones then forced Niles at second on a roller to Altizer, which left Powell on third with the now relebrated George Stone at the bat. The way Stone has been batting this season made him about the strongest proposition In the league for Falkenberg to face. Many of the spectators groaned and cafled for the to pass him to first and take a and a run would win the game.

Game as a Pebble.

But Falkenberg, who is as game as a econd that he was to be passed, but Falkenberg gave him a chance on the next one and a foul to the grand stand followed. On the next pitch the ball broke sharply and another foul followed. Falkenberg then straightened up with two and two and tried to fool Stone with a wide one, out failed, making it three and two for the next pitch. It was a pretty battle between two stars in their different lines, and as they knew the finish was at hand one way or the other. Falkenberg braced himelf, eyed the sturdy batter and then took one of his mighty heaves. The ball came like lightning in cross-fire style. Stone made a victous swing and missed, the ball anding in Heydon's glove for a strike out. yells of relief and exultation that went up from the stands could have been heard for blocks, the excited throng keeping up the noise for a couple of minutes. This proved to be Faikenberg's final hole of the afternoon, as he pitched the last two in-the Browns, also pitched a beautiful game and technically out-twirled the local man, as he allowed one less hit, struck out ten batsmen and passed but three on balls. But three hits had been made off Powell in the first seven innings, and one run ored, while seven hits and two runs had n made off Falkenberg in the Powell evidently weakened a little toward the last, six hits being made in the last six innings. But Powell's suport could not compare to that given the ocal man, Jones' dropped throw being especially costly, as it gave the Nationals

Fielding Beyond Compare.

The fielding of the Nationals was beyond compare, the infield especially doing yeonan service. Manager Stahl went through his usual daily "stunt" of capturing several wide throws, and in addition stopped several hot drives to right that would have one for doubles but for his work. Schlafly at second had fifteen chances and got them all, which emphatically demonstrated that the boy is not in the quitters' class. He pounced on everything that came his way with so much energy and confidence that it vas a pleasure to watch his work. Lave ross also was in the limelight with several pretty stops and accurate throws, and at the bat his timely single in the eighth inming drove in the tying run. Altizer accepted all of his seven chances, scored two of the three runs made and also worked in a pair of timely singles. This boy's work on the base lines was inspiring, as he has the speed to back up good judgment and he is a chance-taker par excellence the outfielders had little to do in the way fielding, but little George Nill is entitled to the crown, as he was "Johnny on the spot" with the base hit that drove in the winning run. Nill is a hard batter pitch to, and as a result he is frequently on the bases and as good a "pinch" hitter s there is in the business. Neither side scored in the first inning, but the Nationals broke the ice in the second, getting the first run of the game. Cross opened with a fly to Niles in right, but Anderson singled to left and went to second on Schlafily's out at first. Stahl then hit to Wallace and the latter made a perfect throw to Jones, but the ball bounded out of the latter's hand and the batter was safe. Anderson had kept on running from the crack of the ball on the bat and as a reilt he crossed the plate on the erro eighth. Altizer beat out an infield hit and stole second while Stanley was striking out, Nill filed to Niles, and then Cross bobbed up with his fine drive to center, on which Altizer scored.

Four more innings of ciphers followed for both clubs, and the shades of night were falling fast when the Nationals came up for their thirteenth turn at the bat. It was a case of do or die, as Umpire Hurst had notified both sides that the game would be called after that inning.

Altizer opened with a fine single to center and Stanley sent him to second with a sacrifice, nicely placed. George-Nill then walked to the bat, and after a strike and two balls had been called he swiped an incurve into left field for a clean single, and Mr. Altizer lost little time scooting for home. It certainly was a quick ending to a long game, and a happier crowd of "fans" could not have been found than those that left the park at the conclusion of the battle.

Neither team had out its strongest outfit. Hester, Fifth's hard hitter, and Lord, Taylor and Kinney, three Calvary cracks, were out of the game, but, notwithstanding this, both teams played sensational ball, and the determination to win was never more marked. more marked

To Twirler McKnight goes the glory and ignominy. Mac has been going good lately, both in the Sunday School League and in out-of-town games, and yesterday his pitching was of the shut-out sort, but he twice missed a victory by his own errors. In the second inning his wild throw to second to catch Bielaski, coupled with Wynkoop's error, permitted Calvary's first score to count; and in the last exciting inning, with two out and Kerr on third, Mac, in his over anxiety, fumbled Lord's drive, and the tying run scored. During the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth innings Calvary could not touch him.

Symanoski was also in his best form. He did splendid work with men on the bases, two being left in the fifth and seventh, and after the fifth only one hit was made—

Ellet's liner to center.

The ninth was the most hair-raising finish of the year. Bielaskt, first up, laced a sizzler past third, and Harding sacrificed him to second. Kerr was hit. Vic took too big a lead and was caught off second by a quick throw from S. Wood. J. Sym poked a teaser to McKnight that he could not quite reach, Kerr going to third. The excitement at this store was intense. excitement at this stage was intense. Lord met the ball squarely, but drove directly in McKnight's hands, but Mac let it get away, Kerr scoring. McKnight then struck out Frank Symanoski. Fifth could not get a man on first in their half of the ninth, and Mr. Betts then called the game. McQuinn made a one-hand circus catch, two hits, and scored both of Fifth's runs. Ben Wood played a great game at first and Vic Bielaski stopped two fierce drives at third. The strenuous struggle had a most unique climax, in which Fifth's center fielder was temporarily rendered hors de combat during a somewhat spirited dis-cussion anent the umpire's decision de-claring Bielaski out at second. In the pennant running and would effectually choke the Lopes of the losers.

Before yesterday's game both teams were within striking distance of Agriculture, and as they both had many supporters to make the fight against Aggie for the pennant, the game was watched with intense interest. Every man on the two teams was on edge, and this over-anxiety was in large part responsible for the number of errors. part responsible for the number of errors. Both Kinney and Curnane were in the pink of condition and pitched well, but the errors behind Curnane were without exception costly, and this decided the game. Be-sides, the Laborites kept up their wonderful run of timely batting, and nine of their eleven hits came with the bases occupied: Kinney was in probably the best form displayed by him this season, and let the hard-hitting Navy lads down with but six hits, that came in pairs in three different innings, each pair netting one run. The game was one of the slowest in point of time during the season, but there was never a moment when it lacked interest. Neither side obtained a decided advantage until the eighth, when the Laborites' threee runs put the game on ice. Capt. Harry Bryan of the Navy made a brilliant catch of a short foul fly to left in the sixth inning that brought the spectators to their feet.

The Laborites went out in order in the first on two strikeouts and an easy chance to third. Hughes started the inning for Navy with a sngle to left. Coleman popped to short and Bryan attempted to sacrfice with a neat bunt down the third-base line that he beat out. Herbert, after a hard run. made a wild throw to first that allowed Hughes to complete the circuit. Commerce and Labor scored their first three runs in the third. Hunt was passed, but Terry forced him at second attempting to sacrifice. Torney hit an easy one to Hughes good for a sure double play that would have retired the side, but Shorty in his over-anxiety fumbled the ball, and after losing his man at second threw wild to first, Terry scoring and Torney going to second. Then the Laborites got in three of their timely swats that counted two more runs, and all this after the side should have been out. A bit of clever fielding by Bryan saved another run in the fifth. Plans Concluded for a Race on the Thames on September 15.

BOSTON, July 24.-Arrangements have Thames river, England, between the Harvard University crew, which defeated Yale bridge University crew, which best Oxford last April. The race will be rowed over the regular Oxford-Cambridge course, which extends from Putney to Mort lake, a distance of four miles and three furlongs.

The Cambridge men have suggested two dates, September 8 or 15, either of which will be satisfactory to them. Harvard will choose the latter. Several members of the Harvard eight are now in Europe, and the others will sail on the Cedric next Friday. The only member of the crew who cannot go at that time is Morgan, at No. 3. He is attending the Harvard summer school, the session of which will continue until August 15. He will sail for England the next day, and will arrive in time to have three weeks in the boat with his associates. In the meantime he will row every day on the the meantime he will row every day on the Charles river here and keep in condition.

Two men from the Harvard freshmen eight, Faulkner and Lunt, will go as substitutes. The party will also include Emerson, as manager; Whitney, assistant manager; Charlie Hart, the boatkeeper; Dr. Manahan, who has looked after the physical condition of the Harvard oarsmen for two years, and Wray, the Harvard coach. wo years, and Wray, the Harvard coach.

Prolonged Negotiations. Negotiations looking toward a race have been under way for several weeks. The Harvard interests on the other side of the water have been looked after by F. L. Higginson, jr., who was captain of the Harvard crews of 1890 and 1900, and is now in business in London, and Rudolph C. Lehman, the well-known English coach and oarsman. Mr. Lehman, it will be remembered, came to this country and coached the Harvard University crews in 1897 and 1898. Since then he has taken a lively interest in Harvard rowing.

The race with Cambridge has been arranged chiefly through his efforts. The ranged chiefly through his efforts. The Harvard men want it distinctly understood Harvard men want it distinctly understood that the race next September will not be for the international collegiate championship. They cheerfully acknowledge the pre-eminence of Cornell, and the race in England will be purely for fun and for sport's sake. The Harvard men say that incidentally they hope to gain from their English opponents some additional knowledge about rowing.

Little is known here about the arrangements which have been made on the other side for the quarters and training of the Harvard men, but these matters will be attended to by the Harvard representatives

To Train on Thames.

The Harvard men expect to train on the Thames river at some place near London. As they will arrive in England on August , and the race will be rowed on September 15, they hope to have time enough to become acclimated.

In the annual Oxford-Cambridge boat ace on the Thames river this year Cambridge won by 3½ lengths. The time was 19 minutes 24 seconds. Cambridge was favorite in the betting at 2 to 1. The race was rowed on April 7 over the regular Putney-Mortlake course. Cambridge took the lead at the start and was never hard pressed.

Harvard defeated Yale on June 28 at New London by two full lengths, after a one of the closest and hardest fought in the history of eight-oared shell racing. Harvard's greater endurance told at the end, and the crew drew out and won in decisive manner. Harvard was beaten by Cornell earlier in the season in a two-mile race on the Charles river. The statistics of the Harvard and Cambridge crews as they rowed this year show that Harvard will have an advantage of eight pounds in the matter of weight. they were boated, follow: The Two Crews.

NEW YORK, July 24.-The Brighton stewards are determined to put a stop to foul riding. Because of rough tactics all through the race Jockey Finn was set down for two days yesterday and his mount, F. The decision was widely applauded by a majority of the spectators. The race was run in 1.07.

For some reason the wise men did not care for Kiamesha at 6 to 5 in the handicap at six furlongs, and the crack mare ran accordingly. accordingly, coming home in the ruck Handzarra, on the other hand, backed down to 9 to 2, showed a form reversal and came to the wire two lengths in front of Far West, 20 to 1. Dolly Spanker, 6 to 1, was a length and a half away. Namie Hodge, 3 to 1, blew up in the last quarter. The time was 1.13.

After riding a poorly judged race on T. Hitchcock, jr.'s, Oro, backed down to 18 to 5, in the steeplechase. Ray had nothing left when Harry Page challenged at the last jump with his gelding, Pure Pepper, 3 to 1, the latter winning in a drive by half a length in 5.29 2-5. Maiden jockeys had the mounts in the first race, for platers at a mile and a sixteenth. Lady Ellison, 4 to 1, favorite, was a poor fourth. The time was 1.17 4-5.

Jerry Wernberg's Flaxman, 25 to 1, took the lead, after going half a mile in the fifth race, at a mile, and was never headed. Horner had to ride him out, however, to win from Corn Blossom, 10 to 1, by half a length. Bryan, a hot favorite at even money, was an indifferent third. The Patchogue stable's Belle of Iroquois, 8 to 5, was the only successful favorite. She ran away from a big field in the last race, for maiden two-year-olds, filles and geldings, five and a half furlongs, and just breezed home three lengths in front of James R. Keene's Yorkist, 7 to 2. A. L. Aste's Lady Vincent, backed from 20 down to 10, got up in time to beat Suada, 10 to 1, a head for third money. The race was run in 1.08 2-5.
